

As Vice President and Executive Director of Audubon Texas, Lisa Gonzalez leads statewide strategy development for a dedicated team of conservation, policy and educational professionals working to advance science, policy, education, and on-the-ground conservation to protect birds and the places they need. Lisa joined the National Audubon Society in July 2021, after a nearly 20-year career with the Houston Advanced Research Center (HARC) serving in research and executive leadership roles. Lisa brings her background in data analytics and research, community outreach, and sustainability to advance conservation practices along the Texas coast, in urban communities, and rural landscapes in alignment with issues such as climate change, nature-based infrastructure, equity, water management, and clean energy.